

BURIED 3,100 AT LIAOYANG

Japanese Field Marshal Oyama Tells in a Message of Russian Slaughter.

MAY LEAVE PRESENT QUARTERS

Air Reeks With the Fearful Stench of Dead Bodies—Preparations for an Advance Are Now Being Rapidly Pushed.

(Special by Scripps-McLain.)

Tokio, Sept. 15.—Field Marshal Oyama of the Japanese forces reports that the Russian positions in the vicinity of Mukden are unchanged. At the close of his message he adds: "We buried 3,100 Russians at Liaoyang."

Preparing to Close In

Tokio, Sept. 15.—(Special.)—It is believed here that Field Marshal Oyama is preparing to close in on the Russians at Mukden and that he is confident that the campaign can be brought to a close before winter. A winter campaign in the rigorous climate of northern Manchuria is to be avoided if possible and the policy is to force the issue, no matter what the cost.

Air Is Reeking

Tokio, Sept. 15.—(Special.)—It is reported here that the Japanese will be compelled to excavate Liaoyang on account of the fearful stench arising from dead bodies. The Japanese are fortifying the approaches to Mukden by way of the Liao river. Preparations for an advance are being pushed. Small detachments of Japanese are moving northward from the Tai Tse river. Preparations are being made to send a force up the Liao river; a hundred barges are ready for the expedition. They intend to ascend as far as Tie Tse where a big battle will probably take place.

To Dismantle "Lena"

Washington, Sept. 15.—(Special.)—The navy department this morning received a dispatch from Admiral Goodrich, at San Francisco, stating that Captain Berinsky of the Russian cruiser "Lena" had formally asked permission to dismantle the ship.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 15.—Gen. Kouropatkin's official report comes as a considerable relief as setting at rest alarmist stories of the loss of guns, the cutting off of divisions, and the death or capture of prominent commanders, which have been freely circulating here. The report, which is a long one, enters at considerable detail into the various phases of the battle of Liaoyang.

The account entirely bears out previous declarations that Gen. Orlif's failure to hold the vital position at the Yental mines was responsible for the breaking down of the whole of Gen. Kouropatkin's plan of battle and

COOK DECLARES HE WILL ABIDE BY THE DECISION

Nominee of Republicans Announces His Policy—Confident of Victory for a Just Cause.

In sharp contrast to the attitude assumed by the governor, the Hon. S. A. Cook, republican candidate for governor, defines his position, and declares his willingness to abide by the decision of the supreme court. In the following letter, which will be read with absorbing interest:

Neenah, Wis., Sept. 14, 1904.

I became a candidate for the nomination of governor at the earnest solicitation of many men from the various walks of life in this state, men who hold the good name of our state and the betterment of the condition of our fellow men of much more importance than the political ambition of any person, and also with an earnest personal desire to wipe out the differences in the republican party of Wisconsin.

At the state convention the factional feeling seemed to intensify, resulting in the withdrawal to the opera house of many of the delegates. In that situation I had no personal opportunity to examine the credentials of any person, and also with an earnest personal desire to wipe out the differences in the republican party of Wisconsin.

A lawful majority. The delegates that went to the state convention at Madison in my support, as well as myself, were convincingly assured by the highest republican leaders who had caused a careful examination to be made that in fact those who assembled at the opera house constituted an ample majority of the delegates lawfully selected by the republican voters of the state for the purpose of making turned a potential victory into defeat. Regains His Prestige.

The manner in which the retreat was carried out in the face of the terrible condition of the country and the determined pressure of the Japanese armies does much to restore Gen. Kouropatkin's prestige in military circles. The report dwells upon the terrible difficulties encountered during the retreat at Liaoyang from positions on the southern front, when twenty-four horses and a whole company of infantry harnessed to a single gun were not able to remove the gun from a quagmire.

It is shown that the retirement from Liaoyang to the north bank of the Taitze river was carried out in good order and with celerity under cover of night on Aug. 31, when it had become evident that Gen. Kuroki was making a determined drive at the Russian communications north of Liaoyang.

Commends Troops for Bravery. Gen. Kouropatkin pays tribute to the courage and devotion of every arm of the service under his command, and especially to the bravery of the troops to whom was set the task of recapturing the Sykwan hills on the north bank of the Taitze river.

The encampment of the night of Sept. 2 was productive of some of the most severe fighting of the whole battle. It was practically a company commanders' fight, commands becoming separated in the darkness and independent units acting upon their own initiative with the one object of carrying out the commander's orders to retake the heights. This account puts the Russian soldier in a different light from the generally accepted belief that he is a mere military automaton, capable only of acting in a mass under specific instructions.

Sykwan Decisive Point. The necessity of retaking the Sykwan heights formed the first break in Gen. Kouropatkin's plan and lost him a whole day, Sept. 2, and thus delayed launching the blow against Kuroki; and when the Russians had just regained a foothold on the coveted position, Orlif's failure to hold the Japanese advance against the Yental mines threatened the envelopment of Kouropatkin on the north, crippled the whole Russian scheme and forced the new historic retreat to Mukden.

up the state ticket. Seeing that the seemingly unreasonable spirit of faction was above party loyalty, I anticipated future effort from the minority to defeat the action of those I firmly believed to be the lawful majority. Therefore, I exacted as a condition of my acceptance of the nomination that the question of regularity and right, should be submitted to the determination of the court of final resort.

In most cases, and especially in matters in which the public is largely interested, we seldom regret having said too little. But I wish to repeat a few words that I have stated before, and I trust they may be received in the same kindly and earnest manner in which they are intended. I have nothing to conceal or cover up in this campaign and I desire that I shall not be misunderstood or misquoted. My position now is the same as it has been all through the campaign for the nomination and election to the position of governor of this commonwealth—absolutely free from official entanglement or factional alliance; equal opportunity and obligation for all civil, commercial, political, or religious.

In this contest I have no enemies that I want to punish or friends to individually reward.

There can be but one regular republican state convention; the candidates therein nominated were and are the regular republican candidates.

Believes He Is Right. A difference of opinion seems to exist in the minds of some as to the desirability of the state convention. I trust that our court can and will, in determining the matter, make it so plain that the humblest mind may

JUDGE SIEBECKER DRIVEN FROM THE BENCH BY BUTLER'S ARRAIGNMENT?

Did Not Return to Sit With His Colleagues in Republican Contest Today—The Stalwarts Win a Point.

(Special to The Gazette.)

Madison, Wis., Sept. 15.—Judge Siebecker is not sitting with the other supreme court members before whom is being held the hearing of the contest over the regularity of the republican tickets today. He is thought to have been driven from the bench by the bitter arraignment made by Attorney Butler for the anti-administration men yesterday. The spies of the governor are closely watching Senator Spooner and the republican leaders.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 15.—The objection of Atty. General Butler for the La Follette faction to the filing of the amended complaint offered by the anti-administration men, a supplemental answer dealing with the action of the defunct state central committee in filling vacancies in its own body, was yesterday overruled by a peremptory command on the part of Chief Justice Cassoday to "file the answer and go ahead with the argument." On account of Judge Siebecker's relationship by marriage to Gov. La Follette it was not believed that he would sit on the case. There was consequently considerable surprise when he took his place on the bench yesterday.

Bookkeeper Weds Girl Who Sent Her Name With Order.

Richmond, Ind., Sept. 15.—An unusual romance is connected with the marriage of Miss Cora E. Moore of Dublin, Ind., to Simon Waltzen of Benson, Ill., which took place in that city. About a year ago Miss Moore, with a number of other girls employed in the Spielman tomato factory, wrote their addresses on the boxes about to be sent away. The box bearing Miss Moore's address found its way into the department store where Mr. Waltzen is engaged as a bookkeeper. A correspondence was at once begun which culminated in the marriage.

WOMAN ROBBER TAKES MAN'S CASH AND WATCH

Female Bandit Commands Victim to Step Into Alley While She Relieves Him of Valuables.

Chicago, Sept. 15.—Robbed at the muzzle of a revolver in the hands of a lone "highway woman," Sigurd Fahlgren, 197 Wells street, returned to his home $25 poorer than when he started, and without his $40 gold watch and chain. Also the woman with the revolver had taken from him proofs of identification procured for use in long-pending litigation over extensive property in Sweden, the loss of which he deprecates more than that of his valuables.

Fahlgren's robber approached him as he emerged from the Chicago avenue station of the Northwestern "L." He observed that she was very tall and graceful and attractive, in a distinctly feminine way. Suddenly she drew her hand from beneath her wrap and he found himself contemplating the glittering end of a revolver.

"Step in there," the woman commanded, pointing to an alley, and Fahlgren complied, and in a moment he was divested of his valuables. Fahlgren is assistant department manager for a prominent mail-order house.

ON THE EVE OF THE CAMPAIGN

All the Republican Artillery Is Ready for Battle To Be Waged in This State.

SPOONER IS THE STAFF GENERAL

With Senator Quarles, Ex-Governor Scofield, and M. G. Jeffris, He Has Surveyed Every Detail of the Field—Busy Days at Madison.

(Special Correspondence.)

There is no lack of energy about the republican headquarters in Milwaukee. The time for delay has passed and from now on the work will be pushed until the republican majority is landed F. O. B. on the cars next November. There seems to be no doubt regarding Roosevelt's majority. It is merely a matter of numbers, but the gubernatorial question is the one that is bothering the state politicians at present. The announcement that M. G. Jeffris is to open the campaign in Milwaukee tomorrow night and that he will be an active figure through the rest of the campaign seems to have put new life and zest to the work of organization. Jeffris made a decided hit at the state convention and his fame as a speaker has gone before him to such an extent that he is wanted all over the country. If he were physically able arrangements would be made for him to speak each afternoon and evening until after election. He will be the premier end of the great republican minstrel show that is soon to begin.

To Be No Letup

Governor Scofield, Senator Spooner, Senator Quarles and M. G. Jeffris were all in Milwaukee for consultation Tuesday. There is much to be discussed. There is much to be settled and the complaint that our two senators are acting in a dilatory manner, as to the responsibilities of the situation can no longer be sanctioned. Spooner is back in Wisconsin to stay until after the election. Spooner is an organizer. Spooner as a staff general is giving vim to the work. The theory that during the summer months valuable time has been lost by non-activity is not true. The whole state has been carefully gone over. Every minor detail has been looked to and now the campaign has actuality in place to begin the battle for supremacy, such a battle as has never been fought in Wisconsin before.

Peck Pleasant

Governor Peck is about the streets of Milwaukee greeting his old-time friends. Democrats who have been out of the party for the last eight years are becoming acquainted with their former democratic brethren at the democratic headquarters. Peck looks the same as he did when he graced the gubernatorial chair years ago. He has not changed a bit. He still wears a red carnation, the sign of Peck democracy. In the lapel of his coat, and has the same smile and warm grasp of hand as he did of yore. The democrats do not know just how strong they really are. They still have their doubts as to the real strength of the men who followed the gold standard and those who were lured by the free silver craze. Time—a few weeks—will tell these facts and then they can lay their definite plans. There is a sentiment among some of the radicals that the Oshkosh convention was swayed from its purposes by the oratory of Vilas and the gold democrats and that the platform is not what they most attractive to the former Bryan men. There is an under-current of feeling at times, only expressed, that the gold democrats who deserted their party for the past eight years have come back asking and taking all the honors while the men who have stood by the party in their defeats are to be relegated to the background while the feastings for the prodigal sons keep up.

"The News" Rampant

The Milwaukee News is bitter in its denunciation of the Oshkosh platform. They can see no good in La Follette nor can they see how matters are to be helped by the endorsement of the platform as it now stands. There was a time when the Daily News was a warm believer in La Follette. When anything that the little reformer did was all right, not only did they aid him with their official endorsement but also helped him financially, although this latter statement is to be muttered under one's breath. But the News' eyes were opened at last and now no bitter enemy of the governor exists than this former supporter. It took many things to finally bring about the revolution but once it came nothing can bring back the former champion of the governor. If he would, Editor Hoyt could tell some wonderful transformation scenes that have been enacted in his sight but he is bound to silence by the bonds of hospitality and hence the world will never know what he knows.

Sheridan's Hurricane Fight

A FORTIETH ANNIVERSARY WAR STORY

September 22-26, 1864

[Copyright, 1904, by G. L. Kilmer.]
WHEN Sheridan sent the Confederate general, Jubal A. Early, "whirling up the valley" from the battlefield of Opequan (Winchester), Sept. 19, 1864, he let his foe escape "bag and baggage," guns and all. But in the hurricane battle which came as a swift sequel on Sept. 23, at Fisher's hill, the young commander opened up the gun capturing business, which gave the whole country no end of amusement throughout the exciting valley campaign. Early's army retreated from Winchester during the night following the battle of Sept. 19 and covered the twenty miles between that point and Cedar creek at a pace quite as lively as that of Sheridan's famous gallop when he rode down to save the day, just a month later.

In his retreat Early followed the old beaten path of the valley pike, a road which witnessed more wild army punches than any other thoroughfare in America, aiming for Strasburg, the next defensible position. Just south of Strasburg the Massanutten mountain narrows the wide Shenandoah valley to about four miles of breadth, and this is spanned by a ridge at right angles, vering he threw Averell's cavalry division and Wright's infantry corps forward and at the same time dispatched Crook's command on a circuitous march of five miles, beyond Early's extreme left. When Early saw Averell and the Sixth corps advancing he gave up hope and ordered his troops to retire after nightfall. But the witching hour of sunset is favorable for sudden attacks, and just about that time Crook, who had moved unseen by the enemy, rushed his line forward and was over the enemy's trenches before his presence had been discovered.

The charge of Crook was immediately followed up by the Sixth corps, on Crook's left. Still to the left and on the ground before described as Early's right flank and main position, the Nineteenth corps descended the ravine of Tumbling run, literally scrambling over rough fields, stone walls, rocks and felled trees. Across the stream they plunged, up the precipitous height, Sheridan and his staff urging them on with shouts and gestures, crying: "Forward! Forward, everything!"

The excited cries of some officers, "Go on! Don't stop, but go on!" were useless, for it was Mission Ridge over again, in the sense that the men in the the eastern extremity resting on the Shenandoah river and the northern base being bordered by a deep stream fitly termed Tumbling run. South of Tumbling run and fairly overlapping the stream Fisher's hill rises its precipitous bluff. Here Early halted, with the full protecting his right flank. The Federal cavalry division of General Wesley Merritt followed sharp on Early's trail from Winchester and on the morning of Sept. 20 struck his outposts along Tumbling run.

Sheridan's march up the historic pike from his victorious battlefield was what might be expected of a vigilant commander operating in a region noted for war surprises. The infantry corps of Wright, Emory and Crook followed in the wake of Merritt's troopers, and the cavalry divisions of James H. Wilson and Averell took the side roads on the right and left to guard the flanks. The whole of the 20th passed in getting the Federal outposts were in the northern limits of the town of Strasburg and the Confederates in the southern portion. Early's army was weaker than when Sheridan met it on the Opequan by the 4,000 casualties suffered there. Besides he had lost General Rhodes, killed; General Fitz Lee, wounded, and General Breckinridge detached for duty elsewhere. Yet he was confident of holding Sheridan off at Fisher's hill, for the guns he had posted there commanded the pike for a long distance, his flanks were guarded by cavalry, and the two days and nights of grace which Sheridan allowed him were used in fortifying his left flank, which rested in the broad valley on the west.

Sheridan occupied the whole day Sept. 21 in placing his three corps of infantry in position for assault. At nightfall he advanced his pickets through the town of Strasburg and drove the Confederate skirmishers back to the defenses of Fisher's hill. The morning of the 22d disclosed fresh defenses of earth, stone and abatis prepared during the night by Early's troops. Sheridan didn't trust to staff reports, but rode himself from one end of the picket line to the other. He found a height north of Tumbling run, which commanded Early's main position, and this was carried and held after a sharp fight. Guns were planted on the height after a night of tedious labor.

In spite of his success in gaining the height confronting Early's main position, Sheridan looked upon that ground as impregnable and decided to turn the enemy's left flank. By skillful maneuvering he threw Averell's cavalry division and Wright's infantry corps forward and at the same time dispatched Crook's command on a circuitous march of five miles, beyond Early's extreme left. When Early saw Averell and the Sixth corps advancing he gave up hope and ordered his troops to retire after nightfall. But the witching hour of sunset is favorable for sudden attacks, and just about that time Crook, who had moved unseen by the enemy, rushed his line forward and was over the enemy's trenches before his presence had been discovered.

Still to the left and on the ground before described as Early's right flank and main position, the Nineteenth corps descended the ravine of Tumbling run, literally scrambling over rough fields, stone walls, rocks and felled trees. Across the stream they plunged, up the precipitous height, Sheridan and his staff urging them on with shouts and gestures, crying: "Forward! Forward, everything!"

The excited cries of some officers, "Go on! Don't stop, but go on!" were useless, for it was Mission Ridge over again, in the sense that the men in the the eastern extremity resting on the Shenandoah river and the northern base being bordered by a deep stream fitly termed Tumbling run. South of Tumbling run and fairly overlapping the stream Fisher's hill rises its precipitous bluff. Here Early halted, with the full protecting his right flank. The Federal cavalry division of General Wesley Merritt followed sharp on Early's trail from Winchester and on the morning of Sept. 20 struck his outposts along Tumbling run.

Sheridan's march up the historic pike from his victorious battlefield was what might be expected of a vigilant commander operating in a region noted for war surprises. The infantry corps of Wright, Emory and Crook followed in the wake of Merritt's troopers, and the cavalry divisions of James H. Wilson and Averell took the side roads on the right and left to guard the flanks. The whole of the 20th passed in getting the Federal outposts were in the northern limits of the town of Strasburg and the Confederates in the southern portion. Early's army was weaker than when Sheridan met it on the Opequan by the 4,000 casualties suffered there. Besides he had lost General Rhodes, killed; General Fitz Lee, wounded, and General Breckinridge detached for duty elsewhere. Yet he was confident of holding Sheridan off at Fisher's hill, for the guns he had posted there commanded the pike for a long distance, his flanks were guarded by cavalry, and the two days and nights of grace which Sheridan allowed him were used in fortifying his left flank, which rested in the broad valley on the west.

Sheridan occupied the whole day Sept. 21 in placing his three corps of infantry in position for assault. At nightfall he advanced his pickets through the town of Strasburg and drove the Confederate skirmishers back to the defenses of Fisher's hill. The morning of the 22d disclosed fresh defenses of earth, stone and abatis prepared during the night by Early's troops. Sheridan didn't trust to staff reports, but rode himself from one end of the picket line to the other. He found a height north of Tumbling run, which commanded Early's main position, and this was carried and held after a sharp fight. Guns were planted on the height after a night of tedious labor.

In spite of his success in gaining the height confronting Early's main position, Sheridan looked upon that ground as impregnable and decided to turn the enemy's left flank. By skillful maneuvering he threw Averell's cavalry division and Wright's infantry corps forward and at the same time dispatched Crook's command on a circuitous march of five miles, beyond Early's extreme left. When Early saw Averell and the Sixth corps advancing he gave up hope and ordered his troops to retire after nightfall. But the witching hour of sunset is favorable for sudden attacks, and just about that time Crook, who had moved unseen by the enemy, rushed his line forward and was over the enemy's trenches before his presence had been discovered.

The charge of Crook was immediately followed up by the Sixth corps, on Crook's left. Still to the left and on the ground before described as Early's right flank and main position, the Nineteenth corps descended the ravine of Tumbling run, literally scrambling over rough fields, stone walls, rocks and felled trees. Across the stream they plunged, up the precipitous height, Sheridan and his staff urging them on with shouts and gestures, crying: "Forward! Forward, everything!"

Origin of Golden Bee Emblem.

BUY IT IN JANESVILLE.
Scattered through the columns of the Gazette for the past month, has been noticed this terse suggestion, "buy it in Janesville," and the question has frequently been asked, "buy what in Janesville?"

The answer is, everything from a hair pin to a threshing machine. In other words let every citizen of the Bower city be loyal to the home market. It is the best market in the state for Janesville and Rock county people.

The city is favored with half a dozen dry goods stores, that would be a credit to any city. There is no more sense in a lady rushing off to Chicago to attend a bargain sale, than there is for her husband to visit the city for a suit of clothes. Both can save money, make friends, and help the town, by patronizing the home market.

There are several first-class clothing stores in the city, and this class of goods can be bought cheaper in Janesville, than in the larger cities. Two or three dozen grocery stores and half as many markets furnish the food supply, and they do it so well that no occasion for complaint exists, either as to quality of goods or prices.

The stocks of furniture and hardware are as complete as can be found in any city, and people have no occasion to go away from home to be buried because the undertaking establishments meet every requirement and are strictly up-to-date.

Every line of business is well represented, and the supply of wet goods is so attractive and abundant that the man who is looking for a jag usually finds it without going to Chicago.

"Buy it in Janesville," should be adopted as the watchword of every citizen. The man in business is dependent for success upon trade which he may attract from the local field. Every dollar diverted from this channel is a dollar put in circulation away from home.

While competition for business is lively in Janesville, there is a disposition in many lines to stand together, in an effort to build up the home market.

This issue of the Gazette contains a liberal number of seasonable announcements which will be read with interest. They are strong and convincing, and speak well for the town, as well as for the lines represented. This announcement will go all over the county and be read by thousands of people in the country.

It requires no argument, except to note results, to prove that they will be effective, and a direct benefit to the business interests of the city.

The man who advertises intelligently, and then backs it up with prices, good goods, courteous treatment and watchful attention, benefits not only himself, but the city as well. The farmer who drives ten miles with his family for a winter stock of clothing, attracted to the market by the advertisement of some enterprising dealer, is very likely to stock up on other lines.

"Buy it in Janesville," appeals to the individual, but the argument, aside from the sentiment of loyalty, rests with the business men of the city. People are going or sending to Chicago for goods every day in the week. Why? Because the Chicago merchants convince them through advertising, that it is for their interests to patronize the Chicago market.

Janesville merchants have the stocks and are in position to meet prices. What they need more than anything else is a well directed campaign of publicity. The Gazette is prepared to render valuable assistance in this sort of a campaign, and the paper believes that many people who now patronize outside markets, can be made to believe that it pays to "Buy it in Janesville."

RAILWAY MEN LIKE HIM.

President Roosevelt is an honorary member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen. When he travels he never fails to shake hands with the engineer and fireman, and he is extremely popular with railway men, many of this class having been appointed to responsible positions.

In September 1902, he delivered an address to the Brotherhood at Chattanooga, Tennessee, in which he said among other good things:

"I believe emphatically in organized labor. I believe in organizations of wage-workers. Organization is one of the laws of our social and economic development at this time. But I feel that we must always keep before our minds the fact that there is nothing sacred in the name itself. To call an organization an organization does not make it a good one. The worth of an organization depends upon its being handled with the courage, the skill, the wisdom, the spirit of fair dealing as between man and man, and the wise self-restraint which I am glad to say, your Brotherhood has shown."

"Your work is hard. Do you suppose I mention that because I pity you? No, not a bit. I don't pity any man who does hard work worth doing. I admire him. I pity the creature who doesn't work, at which ever end of the social scale he may regard himself as being. The law of worthy work well done is the law of successful American life. I believe in play, too—play, and play hard while you play; but don't make the mistake of thinking that that is the main thing. The work is what counts, and if a man does his work well and it is worth doing, then it matters little in which line that work is done; the man is a good American citizen. If he does his work in slothful fashion, then, no matter what kind of work it is, he is a poor American citizen."

This is the sort of unionism that the President of the United States endorses. Organization without tyranny, and free from the objectionable features so often prominent in the ranks of organized labor.

A WOMAN'S WARDROBE.

Much discussion is going on just now as to what a woman should spend for dress to which Roswell Field contributes the following practical suggestions:

"It is really distressing to note the difference of opinion among the ladies as to the cost of feminine apparel in a single year. A New York society woman estimates that it costs her $39,950 to keep suitably and comfortably attired. A Chicago woman believes that a woman may dress respectably on $600 a year, and a thrifty stenographer declares that she can worry along on a trifle over $100. This reminds us of the dispute that arose some years ago over the cost of garters. The first estimates, which included diamonds and other gems, were exceedingly high, but the prices kept falling as the sun moved westward until an aboriginal lady on the plains showed that she fastened her stockings with a pair of Shacknasty Jim's old suspenders at a merely nominal expense. Thus we may see that circumstances alter cases and that no arbitrary rule may be established for the robing of women."

The ability to work and the opportunity to apply the ability, are the greatest blessings enjoyed by any man. The time will come when this fact will not only be recognized, but respected as well. Organized labor is going too far, when it prevents men by violence and the intimidation from exercising God given rights.

The railway companies of the United States employed last year, 1,312,000 men, and paid out for labor $800,000,000. That is more money than it cost to run the government and it makes Wisconsin's Governor and his little army of game wardens look like thirty cents.

It might not be out of character for campaign speakers to discuss the question, What are the Governor's duties. They certainly do not include campaigning against republican nominees.

Railway earnings and pay rolls have doubled in volume since the close of the Cleveland administration.

The Dingley tariff protects the American workman as well as the home market. The Democratic party would abolish it. Why? Because democracy wants a change.

The old state of Maine is in line with 30,000 republican majority. Victory is in the air and democracy will be unable to turn the tide this year.

If the national democratic party wins, vacations will be in order, and strikes will be unnecessary.

Parker is too silent, and Davis too old to lend much enthusiasm to the campaign.

A wise man refuses to buy a gold brick the second time.

The state treasurer seems to have been lost in the shuffle.

PRESS COMMENT.
El Paso Herald: Parker's position relative to the St. Louis platform is that of the worm in the apple. He has crawled inside.

Chicago Record-Herald: If Chauncey Depew proves to be the Republican dark horse in New York the state convention ought to nominate him with a unanimous grin.

Oshkosh Northwestern: Mary had a little lamb, but Governor La Follette seems to have a whole bunch of them.

Whitewater Register: Somebody is going to lose some money this fall betting that Congressman Babcock is going to be beaten in the Third district.

Superior Telegram: The Irish World truthfully says: "Yes, war is hell; and they who are responsible for the bringing on of war, and whose motive is greed or self-glory, are devils."

Milwaukee Sentinel: Elbert Hubbard declares that Booker Washington is the greatest man America ever produced. No doubt Mr. Washington himself will heartily join the answering chorus of "O fudge!"

Chicago Inter-Ocean: Of course the United States government, with its record in the Alabama case, cannot permit its ports to be made the bases of operations by either Russian or Japanese cruisers.

Madison Journal: If those Milwaukee persons who are quarreling over a local school for the blind would lend their energies to building up the state school at Janesville they would be of more use, even if they did lose some notoriety.

Madison Democrat: A Chicago paper says that "the new domestic course in the public schools is expected to make Chicago girls ideal housekeepers." Still, the old-fashioned girl who masters the three R's at school and cooking at home will continue to have the call.

La Crosse Chronicle: When one meets a farmer driving to town with a load of hay it is pleasant to receive a bow or a single word. It smoothes the way, it lights up the scenery and puts one's mind at ease. Salute the passerby; only bow or say "morning;" don't size up strangers as if they looked like highwaymen.

Evening Wisconsin: Imperial Valley, California, is reported to be suffering from a plague of watermelons, due to an over-running of the land by the vines, which are rapidly choking out the wheat and barley. The fruit of these wild vines is said to be juicy and sweet. Now is the time for somebody to spring a California colonization scheme among the colored people of the south.

Buffalo Evening Times: The Guatemala ants placed in the cotton fields of Texas to exterminate the boll weevil are doing good work and their services will be employed all through the cotton belt. It has been discovered that the imported ants are also fond of eating potato bugs, grasshoppers and other insects that destroy $100,000,000 of crops every year and several experimental colonies will be turned loose in northern fields. The question is whether they will be able to stand the northern climate, as they come from a warm country.

Green Bay Gazette: The St. Paul Dispatch and the Milwaukee Free Press are endeavoring to make the people of Wisconsin believe that the stalwart employers of the state are exacting written pledges from their workmen to vote against the La Follette state ticket this fall. The story is really too silly to need a denial but it shows how weak the La Follette cause is when the managers stoop to such work. The stalwart employers have sufficient sense to realize that any such attempts would make votes for La Follette and they are not trying it.

Chicago Tribune: An American naval engineer who has examined the boilers of the Lena reports that they are in bad condition, and that the vessel would not be seaworthy in a storm. This being the case sufficient time should be allowed in which to make necessary repairs. The Japanese consul at San Francisco, in making a peremptory demand that the Lena be compelled to leave within twenty-four hours of its arrival, regardless of its condition, seems to have gone off at half cock. This government understands the obligations of neutrality and is strong enough to enforce them.

Baraboo Republic: We speak of "Little Japan," but the London Spectator points out that the nation is by no means small, its total area, without counting Formosa, is by 27,000 square miles greater than that of the British Isles, and as large a portion of it is fertile and thickly populated. The population, again, is 41,000,000, or 3,000,000 greater than Great Britain, 6,000,000 greater than that of France, and almost equal to Austria-Hungary. As regards soldiers, Japan has a conscription, and the conscription obviously works. Within the last six months the country has sent out six armies, each nearly equal to either of the forces that contended at Waterloo. We must begin to change our ideas about Japan, Russia is.

La Crosse Chronicle: There is something decidedly grand in Colonel W. F. Vilas's resumption of activity in the democratic party. For eight years the Colonel has been a prodigal democratic son. He wandered far away. This year he wandered back, appearing among the faithful at the Wisconsin state convention. He didn't stop outside of the democratic mansion and recount his hard luck experiences. They didn't have to send out and tell him the past was a blank, that they wanted him to enter the wigwag, that the best calf of the lot was his to appease an appetite that was not satisfied with cornhusks and green yams; that the old party was waiting with open arms to welcome him, and was sorry he had remained away so long. There was nothing of that kind. Prudigant Vilas walked boldly into the house, looked the crowd over carefully, invited himself to a seat at the head of the table, feasted to his fill and proceeded to establish himself as governor-general of the entire outfit.

Baby Scales an Alps Glacier. Geneva, Sept. 15.—A sturdy baby girl 3 years of age, named Alice Jaquelin, accompanied by a Chamonix guide, has made her debut as a mountaineer by crossing, almost unaided, the dangerous glacier Des Bossons of Mont Blanc.

Once Wealthy Man Dies Poor. St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 15.—Charles Waterbury, at one time said to be a wealthy stove manufacturer of Cleveland, Ohio, but long in destitute circumstances, was found dead in a hallway.

The Power of Modern Machinery

The first flour was made by pounding wheat kernels between two stones. Flour today is made by machinery. The first paint was made by mixing White Lead and Oil with a stick; the Best Paint (Health & Milligan) is mixed by modern grinding machines built especially for this purpose, and there is the same difference between the two paints as between the first flour with its coarse particles and grit and the modern patent flour.

The paint mixed by hand cannot be a perfect paint; it cannot be perfectly mixed and ground together with a stick.

Flour, water and a yeast cake will make good or poor bread according as you mix and handle them; so also White Lead, Linseed Oil and Zinc will make good or bad paint. Health & Milligan Paint has been made for over fifty years, the proportions of each ingredient are exactly right and ground together by massive machines into a very fine, perfect paint. Health & Milligan Mixed Paint costs 50c per hundred square foot of surface painted (2 coats). Lead and Oil costs 71c. It is the fineness to which Health & Milligan Paint is ground that makes it cost less to use. A pound of flour can be spread over a larger surface than a pound of sand. As to the wear Health & Milligan Paint is guaranteed to wear fifty per cent longer than Lead and Oil. Remember all mixed paint is not alike. Buy the best—Health & Milligan.

INTRUDER IS SHOT DEAD BY WOMAN'S COMPANION

David Monnett is Killed After Trying to Force Entrance into "Prairie Schooner" in Nebraska.

Decatur, Neb., Sept. 15.—David Monnett was shot and instantly killed three miles north of here, and Felix Richey, who says his home is at Alton, Ill., came here and confessed that he did the shooting and gave himself up. Two women, Mrs. Mallinda Fleming and Miss Ella Brown, both of Omaha, who were with Richey when he fired the shot, came to town with him and gave themselves up.

Richey and the two women were traveling across country in a covered wagon. They went into camp, where the shooting occurred. Monnett and James Neary drove from here to the camp.

At the inquest Neary said Monnett tried to enter the wagon, that Richey told him he could not do so, that Monnett then went away, and that when he had got a few feet from the wagon was shot dead. Neary said he thought one of the women fired the shot, but Richey declared he fired it.

GOSSIP IN HIGH SCHOOL CIRCLES

RUSKLYCEUM HELD FIRST MEETING LAST NIGHT.

THOSE OUT FOR FOOTBALL

Laurean's Place Regulation of Scholarship on All Admitted to the Society.

Extra literary work among the high school students is carried on to the greatest extent by the two societies—the Rusk Lyceum, composed of the boys, and the Laurean's, composed of the girls. Debating is the most popular form with both, and nearly every program contains one or more current topics with several extemporaneous speeches following, while occasionally the boys have a mock trial, mock council, mock house of representatives or a general discussion. Humorous readings, original short and continuing stories, where each chapter is given to a different member, are at times interspersed with the extemporaneous addresses. At rare intervals poems are called for.

The Rusk Lyceum
Jerry Rusk, as a type of the good, old Wisconsin citizen, was taken as a model and the namesake of the boys' society. As might be surmised from this, their work lies more in the political than the purely literary field. Last evening the first program of the year was given and being on short notice, was unusually brief. The subjects talked on were: "The Chicago Meat Strike," "The Wisconsin Political Situation," "The Outlook For Football," and "The Construction of The Beet Sugar Factory." It is still too early to begin looking for some outside school with which to hold a joint debate, as was done with Appleton for three years, but the boys are very desirous of having such a contest. Undoubtedly Madison would have been brought here last year but for the delay of the Madison principal in turning over the challenge to the debating society there. A token will also probably be given at the end of the school year, as was done last June, and a series of dances will be given this winter to help raise the money for this and for the annual banquet.

Membership of the society is limited to twenty-five and each new member must be unanimously accepted. This year there are about eight vacancies. The officers are: President, Clayton Fisher; Vice-President, Walter Carle; Secretary, Frank Phelps; Treasurer, Harvey Bailey; Sergeant-at-Arms, Harvey Lee; and Librarian, Earl Brown; Instructor A. H. Bartel has been chosen critic for the year.

Laurean Society
Last year the Laureans, who are joined together for both literary and social meetings, paid more attention to the latter feature and the literary work was slighted to a certain extent. But the programs will be different this year, in that they will be composed of more interesting and more varied features. The first business meeting will be held Monday, September 20 and one afterwards every two weeks. The social meetings will be similar to those of last year but not so numerous. A new regulation as to the membership will be in force. Hitherto simply the unanimous acceptance which was seldom refused an applicant was necessary but henceforth all admitted must have attained scholarship mark of eighty-five. No initiations will be given until later in the year. The debating work of the girls is not so much on political as contemporary and classical history lines. A fine literary style rather than a forceful argumentative is the end they strive to attain. The officers are: President, Ruth Pfeiffer; Vice-President, Clara Jones; Secretary, Lucy Fox; Treasurer, Emma Richardson; and Sergeant-at-Arms, Grace Winterholt. The critic has not yet been chosen.

Football Candidates
Although the team has not been picked it is very likely that all of last year's veterans will be on the football squad this fall, but few in their old positions. Carle is practicing as left tackle. He is showing up well in carrying the ball and has already proved himself able to hold his own on the defense. Caldwell who starred last season as center is trying for right half-back. The position of left half will probably be kept by Bennett. J. Ryan and Galbraith, two of last year's strong points in the eleven, will be back in their old places of left end and quarter-back. Lee, a "sub" of a year ago, is now practicing as right tackle. Another sub of the 1903 team, Devins, is being tried as full back. Wright is also out for the team. Among the new candidates are F. Ryan, Seltz, Selee, Burgess, Woodruff, Saxby, J. Davis, Mahoney and Connors.

Fall the Time to Paint
The old idea that house-painting should be done in the spring is being put to rest by those who study conditions. The fall time really is better for many reasons, said S. Hutchinson, Jr., of the S. Hutchinson & Sons firm. In the first place the painter has more time to give the work, and next the paint sets better, dries more slowly and there is no danger from excessive heat or from the swarms of small flies which are liable to flock down and ruin a job if they strike the paint while it is wet. We recommend painting in the fall.

GROWING COTTON IN JANSVILLE

HERMAN GAULKE HAS A FULL BLOWN PLANT.

BOLL-WEEVIL NOT ON DECK

And Frost Will Prevent Cotton-Ball From Maturing—Will Try Again Next Year.

Herman Gaulke of Milton avenue has in full bloom on his premises a cotton plant which has excited the curiosity of many observers. The blossoms are of a light yellow color at first but in time the petals turn pink and fall off, leaving the embryo cotton-ball to mature. The recent cold weather has put an end to any hopes Mr. Gaulke may have entertained for a heavy cotton crop this fall, but he has not lost hopes and the experiments will be resumed next year. The famous boll weevil has been conspicuous by its absence but this may be due to the incomplete development of the plant, and not to the fact that the bug is unaware that Janesville is on the map.

SPECULATE ON CORN DAMAGE

John W. Gates and His Friends Buy 10,000,000 Bushels, Their Paper Profits Being Large—Cold in the Northwest May Be Serious.

Chicago, Sept. 15.—Jack Frost made good his promise Tuesday night by making Wednesday the coldest of the season. It was a fall of some ten degrees, and "more cover," top coats, light wraps, and a general diving into closets for heavier apparel was the order of the day and night.

And the end is not yet, for something like a temperature of 43 degrees above the zero mark will be the order for Thursday.

If the sky remains clear there will be frost—probably quite a noticeable trace. While not enough to make early sleighing, it will be sufficient to destroy late vegetables, fruits and flowers. In more exposed places corn may suffer a slight nip. As a temperature of 45 degrees is sufficient for frost, there is danger when that point is lowered.

Corn Belt Badly "Bitten."

There was a frost scare over the corn belt. Millions of bushels of the growing crop are held in the balance, as temperatures for the night may damage 20 per cent of the crop of the great corn belt in the Mississippi and Missouri valleys. This means more than its effects on the speculative markets. It means to a considerable extent the future condition of business in sections where great numbers of live stock are raised and fed. It is likely to shape the course of the merchandise trade of parts of the west, and reduce the tonnage of grain that the railroads had expected to haul.

While the wheat crop is a big item, it is a small affair as compared with corn. There are over 80,000,000 acres planted in corn in the United States, of which over 50 per cent are in the central west and west. It might cut down the crop 50,000,000 to 100,000,000 bushels. This would make the crop around 2,250,000,000 bushels.

An interesting play in corn is being made by the John W. Gates party. They have a following in Wall street that has recently bought 10,000,000 bushels for May and December. Their profits are several cents a bushel on paper. What they will be in reality is one of the uncertainties of speculating in corn.

Cold in Canada and Michigan.
The coldest places Wednesday were at White River in Canada, and at Sault Ste. Marie. The bulb registered 40 above at both places.

Killing frosts visited Montana, both Dakotas, Wyoming, and Nebraska. Heavy frosts fell in Minnesota, northwestern Iowa, and in Wisconsin. Slight precipitations were witnessed in Kansas, northern Missouri, and Illinois. The hottest places yesterday were at Jacksonville, Fla.; Vicksburg, Miss.; Montgomery, Ala., and in New Orleans, where the thermometer registered 90. Vicksburg had 92. Medicine Hat, the home of the frost king, could do no better than 80.

The general conditions are favorable and an early passing of the present cold wave anticipated. Northern Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, and Michigan will feel the burden of the frost today, the heaviest fall to be in Wisconsin.

Better Weather Reports.
Prof. Willis L. Moore, chief of the United States weather bureau, was a guest of Prof. Cox. He told the members of the Chicago Press club in a little talk that the government was installing observation stations in the Blue Ridge mountains, which would be equipped with the most modern appliances for exploring the atmosphere, and would result in giving the people a better and more extensive weather forecasting service. Prof. Moore states that quite soon it will be possible for the forecasts to be made for many days in advance instead of for but thirty-six hours as now obtains.

GERTRUDE THOMPSON WANTS DIVORCE FROM HER HUSBAND.

MARRIED DURING CARNIVAL

Cruel and Inhuman Treatment, the Charge—Once Brandished a Revolver in Home.

Action for divorce has been started against Charles Thompson by his wife, Mrs. Gertrude P. Thompson, the complaint being filed in the clerk of the court's office. The charge is cruel and inhuman treatment. It will be remembered that Mr. and Mrs. Thompson were married in public on a large stand erected in the Court-house park during the Elks' carnival. Mr. Thompson left for the Dakotas about two months ago and from all that can be learned he intends not to return. It is alleged that when he was home last he brandished a revolver in the family circle because his pet dog had been killed. Night before last Mrs. Thompson moved from the flat over Baumann's grocery store to the apartments of her mother, Mr. Pierce, two floors away. In her work she was assisted by her girl friends.

NO INCREASE IN CAPITAL STOCK

Report That Western Shoe Company Will Enlarge, Is Untrue for the Present.

A report was current this afternoon that the Western Shoe company was intending to increase its capital stock and that a prominent lawyer of this city would become interested in the firm. When asked concerning this, Mr. Nichols, manager of the company, said: "No, we are not considering such a plan at the present, although a party has been looking over the plant. Our work is increasing and we are very busy just now, but we are still able to take care of the trade with the capital invested. If our work increases to any great extent we would enlarge the capital but that will not be for awhile."

AMOS REHBERG & CO. Two Stores CLOTHING AND SHOES ON THE BRIDGE

...Forty Years Ago...

Janesville Daily Gazette, Thursday, Sept. 15, 1864.—Personal.—We had the pleasure of receiving a call yesterday from Dr. Henry Palmer well known among our citizens as a genial, warm hearted gentleman as well as an excellent surgeon. The doctor left the state with the Seventh regiment, but was soon transferred to take general supervision of the large government hospital located at York, Pa. He informs us that he has over 2,000 patients under his charge on an average, requiring no inconsiderable amount of labor and professional skill to properly discharge the duties of the position. The doctor will return to his post again in a few days.

Beautiful Portrait Paintings.—During a recent trip to Chicago we had the pleasure of a visit to the art gallery of A. E. Darling in the Marine Bank Building. We have rarely seen anything finer in the way of portrait paintings than met our eyes there; not only was the shading and coloring of the pictures fine and rich but what is still better, the likeness to the originals were wonderful. Among the faces we noticed were those of Dr. Colver, of the Tabernacle Baptist church, Gen. Kannon and Judge Bradwell and his wife. A pleasant time is in store for any one who visits the studio.

We Are Coming Father Abraham.—Should there be another call for 200,000 men the city of Janesville would be out of the woods as she has furnished under the last call 58 more than her quota. The surplus is divided among the wards of the city.

When General Fremont became a presidential candidate, he ceased to be a general. McCallan might learn propriety as well as politics.

Wisconsin Iron Brigade.—The famous Wisconsin Iron Brigade of the Old First Corps, under General E. S. Bragg, has recently been assigned to General Crawford's division to which it belonged. Gen. Cutler's being for the present broken up.

Only a Question or Two.—We might ask some plain questions which it would be disagreeable, though not difficult for democrats to answer, to wit: Of the fifteen states that voted against Lincoln in '60, which one of their governors is not or has not been a traitor? Another question: How many of those fifteen democratic states rose in arms against the government? Verily this is a democratic war against the fundamental principles of the constitution, that the majority shall rule. Now let it be borne in mind that this same traitorous party assembled a convention at Chicago to nominate a candidate for the Presidency, and judging from the past, what may we expect in the case of his success in November. — Cincinnati Gazette.

A RIDE ON THE FAST MAIL

In the Cab between Chicago, St. Paul and Minneapolis

It is significant that the one train which makes the Chicago-St. Paul run in ten hours, carries no passengers.

To ride on it is a privilege acquired by few. Yet a journey on this train, which carries none but government mail clerks and its crew, is an experience, especially if the journey be made on the "freeman's side" of the huge locomotive which pulls it. It is a revelation of what fast passenger service means and a liberal education in appreciation of the cool nerve and absolute competency of the men who run fast trains.

The fast mail over the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway leaves Chicago every night of the year with from twenty to fifty tons of mail aboard and reaches St. Paul every morning with its burden of letters and packages in time for transfer to other trains to the Pacific coast, to connect with the mail boats, north into the Dominion, east and west into adjoining states and radiating over a dozen lines of railway into every nook and cranny of the Northwest.

If one asks why the fast mail carries no passengers he is answered that there are other trains which do that work. Another reason is apparent after a journey on the "head end" with the two chunder-marked and grease-smudged gods of the machine that pull it.

Ten hour service means speed. On a glorious night not long ago the fast mail pulled out of Milwaukee on time, swinging along at an easy gait through the maize of green, white, and red switchlights until the last tall semaphore arm signaled "all clear," then Engineer Sullivan's long right arm shot forward through the dark suddenly, the horse synchronization of the exhaust changed suddenly to a long walling roar, and the tremendous locomotive seemed to lurch up, in every joint as she swung forward into the night.

"He run her in compound," the fireman, Woodland explained. His father in his early life had apprenticed him to Jeweler. He had a back like an ox and an arm like an oak tree.

Mail posts began to fade in regular succession and telegraph poles flew by so fast it was hardly possible to count. The track ahead took on an uncanny grayish haze, but the speed constantly increased. The big locomotive slowed down for nothing. She took sharp curves like a race horse and lunged into the long tangents like a slinged cat. Engineer Sullivan didn't talk much. He was pretty busy watching the track. When he did talk it was to the point.

"Forty-five miles out of Milwaukee including the trip through the yards and suburbs, where we had to slow down, in forty-six minutes," he said. He dropped to the ground and oiled up almost on the run. Two minutes elapsed, the big machine was ready to go again, but the conductor appeared out of the gloom and remarked that a journal on a mail car had run hot.

Hot journals are not serious in themselves, but six minutes clipped from the schedule of the train which must run while in motion at a rate of slightly more than 55 miles an hour for 408 miles, is a very important matter. Engineer Sullivan swore softly and drowned his wrath in copious applications of more oil to the big engines stuffing boxes. Then he mounted the towering cab again and the race was on for the second time.

Woodland grinned. "We'll run like a pup with a tin can tied to his tail now," he confided.

We did. Mile posts and telegraph poles became one long procession, with scarcely perceptible distances between them. The air rushed through the open cab windows like a cyclone, and the mail cars, trailing along behind, rocked and swung on their springs like so many drunken men. The pace was tremendous.

One's sensations were much like those when the horses enter the last eighth on a fast mile track and 40,000 people in the grand stand begin to cheer. The speed gradually increased from 51 to 58, then to 62, 66, 71, 74 and 76 miles an hour; then, on the crest of a "hill" the summit of an up and down grade it suddenly jumped to 84 and then to 92 miles an hour—a mile and a half minute, and one felt an insane desire to yank the throttle away out and see if it were not possible to make three miles a minute.

It was a pace that made the government mail officials grin, but it was no pace for sedate burghers and business men.

At Rio the pace suddenly fell off. Engineer Sullivan looked at his watch.

"On time," he said briefly. The fast mail covered the remaining few miles at a handy clip, stopped for a minute at a crossing and swung into Portage, 93.1 miles from Milwaukee, on time to a second.

Ninety-three miles in a trifle more than 100 minutes actual running time!

Reeling off the miles at a speed of practically a mile a minute, Engineer Sullivan passed the yard limits at Sparta on time, only to find the signals out against him, and train No. 2, which had the right of way because it was a southbound train, losing time and late. The heavy mail train pulled into clear on a siding and twelve minutes lapsed before the bright white headlight of the southbound passenger showed around a curve.

Twelve minutes lost was a handicap, but it did not mean much after the other things had happened. The big A2 locomotive, with driving wheels seven feet in diameter, swung out on the main line again, and after a few strokes of her pistons, sent the speed rate climbing.

Eighty-eight miles an hour was interesting, but not sensational, after having made 92 miles an hour. The heavy train pulled into North La Crosse on time—26 miles in 23½ minutes.

The regular passenger trains of the Chicago Milwaukee & St. Paul railway make speed records sometimes. Their schedules are moderate, yet their engine drivers are in constant danger of minor delays and small losses and time, every minute of which means a faster actual running schedule and more speed in order to cover the remaining mileage on time. To handle a big train requires several qualities most men value—absolute self-confidence and self-reliance on the part of the engine driver, conservative nerve and daring, resourcefulness and lightning quickness of judgment which must not be nearly right, but absolutely unerring. On a big locomotive of the Milwaukee Pioneer Limited a few nights since, Engineer Sullivan, and fireman Hultane covered the greater part of the run from Lake City to La Crosse at a speed averaging for actual running time between 55 and 58 miles an hour. On another night, with Engineer Patrick Doyle and fireman John Youngquist, many minor delays and the handicap of "slow orders" on one section of track, were overcome by added speed and the Pioneer Limited, an unusually heavy train pulled into La Crosse on time.

Condemns Top Hats.

The London Medical Press thus issues a call for heroes: "The top hat is ugly, unhygienic and embarrassing. Its sole claim to support is the appearance of respectability it gives. If only a few medical baronets would drive to their consultations in Panamas and cloth caps they would break the tyranny of habit over health and comeliness, and at the same time earn the undying gratitude of their humbler confreres."

The Folly of Grief.

It is wicked to grieve. It is a sin against the mind, a sin against the body and a sin against the minds and bodies of all with whom the mourner comes in contact. To grieve about what can not be helped is foolish, and to grieve about what can be helped means that we are indolent, too indolent to get up and stamp out the forces that make us miserable.—Exchange.

Tobacco Ash as Fertilizer.

It has been calculated that 8,000 tons of tobacco ash is annually wasted in England. It would make an invaluable fertilizer for poor soil, considering that 75 per cent consists of calcium and potassium salts, and 15 per cent of magnesium and sodium salts, including nearly 5 per cent of the essential constituents to all plants—phosphoric acid.

J.M. BOSTWICK & SONS.

FALL opening time is here. The Big Store is ready to show the largest and best selected stock of fall merchandise ever brought to Janesville. From the foremost markets of the country are gathered goods of a dependable quality and most comprehensive variety. We are proud of our reputation of being the largest and most satisfactory dry goods trading center in Southern Wisconsin and are sure to increase our prestige by this season's business. Early inspection and selection is always desirable as, naturally, the stock is depleted, its choicest specimens sold and others not so fresh as the season advances. For our opening sale, which is really more in the nature of a mammoth reception, we will offer some particularly interesting and enticing bits of merchandise from our new stock.

New Fur Stock Now Ready

This season is to be a splendid one to buy furs. The annual auctions held at London and Nizhni Novgorod, where the prices are made for furs brought heavy reductions in values. The reason for this is that at both markets there was a large and comprehensive collection of beautiful furs and, as this commodity, like all others is regulated by supply and demand, the prices dropped. We were fortunate in buying our full stock of these goods and are in splendid shape to fill your orders.

NEARSEAL JACKETS—The finest line we have ever shown, most perfect fit known, new full sleeve with cuff, many with beautiful fancy linings same as in genuine seal. In quality they are hard to detect from the genuine. Some plain, others trimmed with martin and beaver; 24, 26 and 30 in. lengths; $45 to $75.

ELECTRIC SEAL GARMENTS—Called Nearseal by many merchant; $25 to $35.

CAPIES FOR ELDERLY LADIES in Electric Seal, Wool Seal and Astrakhan.

SMALL FURS

SCARVES—in Brown Opposum to match the new brown suits. We show a very strong line of these; the same in black also; $1 to $18.

Natural Opposum for Misses—very serviceable; $1 to $10.

ISABELLA FOX SCARVES—larger line than ever, great success with them. Flat and round shapes and straight in the new effects; $8 to $40.

BLACK MARTIN SCARVES—Always in demand because they wear so well; prices, $7 to $30.

BLUE FOX SCARVES—Very desirable and pretty.

BEAR SETS shown in great variety.

SMALL NECK AND FANCY SUIT PIECES—We show in squirrel, mink, moleskin, musk, and fox. Inexpensive and fashionable.

FULL LINE OF MUFFS.

Orders taken for high grade fur garments at prices up to $1,000, and money saved for you on every order.

Dress Goods for Winter

In the woolen dress goods section we show all of the new weaves and effects from the world's best factories. Price concessions in buying enable us to offer exceptional values in these goods and a late purchase, at a heavy discount, enables us to sweeten the season's opening considerably.

Quilts and Blankets for Cold Nights

These cold nights make us think of the quilts and blankets that are so acceptable. Our line of quilts are well and favorably known in and around Janesville. They are all strictly home made, the materials all being taken from our stock and then put together under our personal supervision. This costs more money than buying them from factories but it assures us that they are right in every particular.

No second grade batting nor coverings are used and we feel a pardonable pride every time we show one. They cost just a trifle more than the other kind but they are well worth the difference in their good wearing qualities and the perfect sanitation.

We show them at $2, $2.25 and $2.50.

In blankets we have a large and comprehensive stock. One shipment just received of over 600 pair cotton blankets in gray, tan and white. We placed this order early in the spring because we could buy them for much less money than later.

Wool blankets, white or gray, $2.50 to $15.

We have put in stock several popular numbers of Union Suits, price $2 to $5. Special orders will be taken for any style in women's or children's garments that the Lewis Co. make.

MUNXING UNDERWEAR—

Occasionally we meet a woman who did not know that we carried it, but not often. We have been exclusive agents for years, and have sold many thousands of dollars worth of the Munxing Vests, Pants, and Union Suits for women, misses, and children. We add new numbers to the line each season and seldom are out of any size in the many qualities we carry. Prices range from 50c to $3.50.

Carpets and Draperies

HOW ABOUT CARPETS? Our stock is now at its best. If one has a Carpet want surely a look here will result to one's advantage.

HOW ABOUT RUGS? All that's late in rugdom can be found here. Of course there are rugs elsewhere, but this store shows so many that it is hardly necessary to look around. Some of them: Wilton Velvet, Smyrna, Body Brussels, Brussel Ingrain, Ingrain Art Squares, Grass Twine, Hodge's Fibre, Burmah and Karin Art Squares, Oriental Rugs, $5 to $100, with jaw-breaker names, "anyway they're good," and others. Rugs for most any color scheme.

HOW ABOUT CURTAINS? It is certainly time to get new curtains in place of the ones that have done service so long. You may think the little holes or ravelled edges will not show—but neighbors see lots of things, you know.

Our stock is so very complete that it would be hard for one just looking to kill time to think of any desirable style that we do not carry. You are welcome to look, though.

Coming Attractions.

The pleasant announcement is made that "Under Southern Skies" is to re-appear at the Myers Grand on Saturday evening, Sept. 17. This is the fourth season of this delightful drama which has been played before many crowded and fashionable houses since it appeared here last season. Its popularity seems to grow greater with each succeeding visit as it is one of those plays which people like better every time they see it. A gentleman leaving the lobby after witnessing the performance was overheard to say: "Every time I see this play I discover something new in it that I missed before." This may be the secret of the extraordinary vogue which the play enjoys. The management of "Under Southern Skies" has provided the play with an entirely new and very beautiful scenic equipment for this season and new costumes will be worn. The Halloween celebration and pumpkin dance which are such enjoyable features of the performance will be as entertaining as before and will be in a measure new even to those who have already seen them as new songs and dance figures will be used.

"Pawnbroskers" Here Tonight
Wesley and Mack and Mazie Trumbull, Carver and Pollard, Winifred Stewart, Chas. Holt and the Columbia Comedy Four are among the principals of "The Irish Pawnbroskers" who were with the company when they were here last season. They have been augmented with some new blood and when the comedy appears here tonight at the Myers Grand the same care and excellence that characterized the performance when given here last season will again be noticeable. The company numbers twenty-five people, and carry every particle of scenery used in the three acts. "The Irish Pawnbroskers," while a farce comedy, cannot be classed with the average entertainment that is traveling under that guise, as it has a well defined plot, and there is rhyme and reason for all the funny mishaps and incidents, which, being understood by the audience, makes the fun more enjoyable. The three acts are lightened and brightened by an abundance of music and concerted and individual specialties.

On Monday evening next at the Myers theatre, Messrs. Fisher & Ryley will present Isidore Rush, in "Glittering Gloria," a play that was one of the greatest comedy successes ever given at Wyndham's Theatre, London, where it had a long and uninterrupted run to a series of crowded and delighted houses. Its presentation at Daly's theatre, New York last spring was simply a repetition of its great English hit. The comedy is by Hugh Morton, author of of complicated situations that create no end of laughter and merriment. Miss Rush's part enables her to appear to splendid advantage, and also gives her the opportunity to introduce several musical numbers, and to wear some handsome gowns, for which she has always been noted. The company, which is exceptionally strong, includes, George Parsons, Wilton Heriot, J. C. Davis, Bert Clark, Thomas A. Kierman, W. B. Freeman, Edward W. Fayer, Chas. Olney, Lulu London, Irma C. Davis and others.

Seldom Take a Bath.
The Merionethshire (Wales) officer of health, says the quarrymen seldom, if ever, bathe themselves all over. In fact, this was a weakness in the district, and there are thousands of grown-up people in Festlog who had never had a proper bath in their lives.

Mexico's Water Power.
Of the great abundance of water power with which Mexico is supplied, it is estimated that not more than 250,000 horsepower is being utilized, or is in course of development at the present time. The potential horsepower has never been estimated with any degree of accuracy.

A correspondent sends us an interesting natural history note. On opening his wardrobe the other day he found a moth in his dress coat. The effect, he declares, was ludicrous, as the coat was, of course, much too big for the moth.

THE STORY OF RAISSULI.

Capture of the Arab Brigand by the Basha of Tangier Described by Himself.

The Brigand Raissuli, who captured Perdicaris, tells his own story in Leslie's Monthly Magazine.

"Now, some eight years ago, Abd-el-Rahman Abd-el-Saduk, then the basha of Tangier, said Raissuli, 'finding that he could not subdue the resistance of our party by the troops at his disposition, made overtures of peace, and, sending me a safe conduct, invited me to come and discuss a friendly solution of our difficulties. I went to his official residence alone and unarmed—and, while we sat at a table (literally—about a tray—) I was suddenly seized, bound, hurried to prison and heavily ironed, an iron band was riveted about my neck, handcuffs with intervening bars so that I could not bring my two hands together were fastened on my wrists, and similar fetters were also riveted about my ankles. Then I was sent to Mogador and there confined with the lowest criminals, who reeked of filth and who swarmed with insects—these latter cut into my flesh as did also my irons. Thus I remained four long years, chained to the walls so that I could not lie down, until at last the neck band and handcuffs were removed. After that I passed still another whole year in that horrible prison. Do you now wonder,' he asked, 'at the oath I swore to be revenged upon so treacherous an enemy? You know,' he continued, 'of the column of government troops lately sent against us. They remained in the valley, yonder, capturing defenseless peasants at the plow and violating their daughters, of whom 18, amongst them children of six years old, have been thus dishonored. Then came the treacherous capture of the M'zorra deputation who went at Hadj Abd-el-Salam Abd-el-Saduk's summons, bearing, not arms, but presents in their hands. Then I determined to seize upon some European and to hold him until these men should be released and until the Abd-el-Saduks make restitution for the wrongs we have suffered at their hands."

Dog Massage.

Queer professions are many and various, but there can be few more queer than one which is now being advertised in Paris—that, namely, of professor of massage for dogs. It appears that there is an establishment in which dogs may be subjected to treatment at the following rates: For changing the form of the muzzle, 40 francs; putting wrinkles on a bulldog's face, 80 francs; making a straight tail curly, 20 francs; removing superfluous hair, five francs an hour; changing color of coat, 30 francs; changing drooping ears to erect, and vice versa, 20 francs; making a bulldog's fore paws crooked, 100 francs.

Alarming Symptom.

"What's the occasion of all this talk about having a conservator appointed for old Muntoburn?"

"I think it originated with his lawyers. He wants to tear up his will and divide his property among his heirs while he is still alive."—Chicago Tribune.

THE LITTLE ONES.

A cruel boy will grow up to be a cruel man.

A spiteful girl is pretty certain to turn out a spiteful woman.

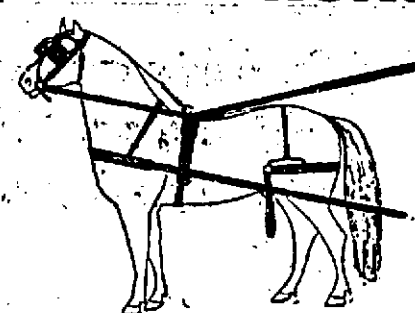

Every boy who wants to be a priest doesn't always end a saint.

A girl who doesn't like dolls is seldom kind to her brothers and sisters.

An idle boy may be good, but he rarely accomplishes anything when he grows up to be a man.

A sharp-tongued girl never makes a good wife, and generally stays a bitter old maid, seeing the evil in every body.—Exchange.
